

Table of Contents

Acknowledgement

Chapter 1 (pp. 1-32)

Introduction

1.1. Nation, Nationalism and National Identity: Exploring Theoretical Underpinnings

1.2. Nations without States

1.3. Social Identity Theory and Mobilisation Process

1.4. Tibet: A General Introduction

Summary

Chapter 2 (pp. 33-61)

Contextualising Tibet

2.1. An Analytical Account of Existing Pieces of Literature on Tibet and Tibetans

2.2. Escape to Exile: Tibetans in India

2.3. Socio-Psychological Dynamics of Identity Formation among Tibetan Refugees

2.4. Tibetan Mobilisation Strategies in Exile: Politicisation of Ethnicity and Other Strategies

Summary

Chapter 3 (pp. 62-104)

Methodology

3.1. The Paradigm Dialogue in Psychology

3.2. Methodological Framework - Ethnographic Approach and Thematic Analysis

3.3. The Knower and the Knowable

3.4. Balancing the Power Relations

3.5. Method

3.6. Ethical Consideration

Summary

Chapter 4 (pp. 105-141)

Fieldwork Reflections: A Report on Observations and Findings

4.1. Phase I: The Padoh Settlement (Mandi, Himachal Pradesh)

- 4.2. Phase II: The Bylakuppe Settlement
- 4.3. Phase III: A Day in the Life of Tibetans in Sarnath
- 4.4. Relevance of the Field Report in the Present Context

Summary

Chapter 5 (pp. 142-173)

Tibetan National Identity: Imagination, Identification, Belongingness and Defining “True” Tibetans

- 5.1. Ethnic Distinctiveness
- 5.2. Faith in the Dalai Lama
- 5.3. National Trait

Summary

Chapter 6 (pp. 143-204)

Everyday Mobilisation: Tibetan Struggle for a Nation in Exile

- 6.1. Common Enemy of the Nation
- 6.2. Exiled Realities and National Consciousness
- 6.3. Everyday Mobilisation

Summary

Chapter 7 (pp. 205-222)

Discussion and Conclusion

- 7.1. Discussion
- 7.2. Conclusion
- 7.3. Limitations of the Present Study

References (pp. 223-253)

Appendix (pp. 254-259)