The existence of this thesis came to reality due to support and good wishes of many people. In the first place, I owe my deepest gratitude to my supervisor, Dr. Sandip Chatterjee, for introducing me to the field of condensed Matter Physics and to witness the enormous progress made in this fascinating field of study. His keen interest, excellent guidance, encouragement, critical discussions and valuable suggestions provided continuous impetus for the successful completion of this work.

I am also grateful to Dr. A. K. Ghosh, Department of Physics, Banaras Hindu University for his help which made it easy for me to work in such an inter-disciplinary subject.

I sincerely thank the members of my Research Programme Committee (RPC), Dr. D. Giri, Dr. P. Singh and Dr. P. Maiti (SMST, IIT (BHU)) for their valuable suggestions during the course of present research work.

I am thankful to my friends Dr. Gopeshwar Dhar Dwivedi , Mr. Abhishek Kumar, Mr. Kaushal Shukla, Mr. Abhishek Singh, Mr. Rahul Singh and Mr. Satyam Kumar for their help and support.

I am specially thankful to Dr. Shiv Kumar and Mr. Ashutosh Upadhyay for their help and support.

Financial support in the form of Junior and Senior Research Fellowships from IIT (BHU) is gratefully acknowledged. Junior and Senior Research Fellowship received from the Council of Scientific and Industrial Research (CSIR), New Delhi, is also gratefully acknowledged.

I cannot end without expressing my appreciation, gratitude and indebtedness to my parents, Shri Akhileshwar Shahi and Smt. Urmila Shahi, my parents-in-law Shri Nagendra Rai and Rama Rai, my sisters Haritima Shahi and Preeti Shahi, my wife Garima Shahi and my sweet daughter for their unbounded love, blessings, encouragement and supports in various ways. I express my indebtedness to my Grandfather Late Vishwanath Shahi for their blessings, which is constantly pouring on me even he is not here to support me physically but he is always there in my mind to guide me in tough situations.

Finally, I am grateful to Almighty for giving me patience to make this endeavor a success.
